Dear Aurora,

Greetings from Harvard University. Last year around this same time I sent you an email promoting an exciting fellowship program available to talented physicians and medical students interested in bringing meaningful change to the health care delivery system. I invite you once again to promote this opportunity widely to those in your networks, and I want to promote a second fellowship related to health policy as well.

First, the Jerome H. Grossman M.D. Graduate Fellowship allows a small number of qualifying physicians and medical students to pursue a two-year master’s degree in public policy or public administration (MPP or MPA) at Harvard Kennedy School. Fellows are awarded full tuition, fees, and a living stipend for two years, as well as support to carry out summer internships. They are invited to participate in symposia, workshops, and other activities at Harvard that explore health care policy. Qualifying physicians and medical school students are encouraged to apply. More information on this opportunity can be found here.

Second, the Commonwealth Fund Mongan Fellowship in Minority Health Policy is a one-year, full-time, academic degree-granting program designed to prepare physicians for leadership roles in transforming health care delivery systems and promoting health policies and practices that improve access to high performance health care for racial and ethnic minorities, economically disadvantaged groups, and other vulnerable populations. Fellows complete academic work leading to a Master of Public Health degree at the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health, or a Master of Public Administration degree at the Harvard Kennedy School with prior MPH. The Commonwealth Fund Mongan Fellowship full tuition, health insurance, books, travel, and related program expenses, including financial assistance for a practicum project. More information on this opportunity can be found here. A webinar providing more information on this fellowship will take place on October 11 and the registration link is here.

The HKS admission application deadline is December 4, 2017 and the accompanying fellowship application information is available on the web sites referenced above.

Please feel free to pass this information on to individuals who may be interested and I also welcome you to share this information via newsletters, social media, listservs, or other channels as you see fit. Opportunities to pursue fully funded programs at Harvard are quite rare and we want to broadly communicate these wonderful opportunities. Thank you in advance and please let me know if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Matt Clemons
